■ Case Management Goals

The goals of case management are to assist and monitor the injured worker through their recovery, optimize treatment available to them and return individual to the work force. This is accomplished through the following:

- Referral to a registered nurse or rehabilitation specialist with experience in occupational health case management, rehabilitation counseling or disability management.
- Review of all pertinent medical reports and records.
- Assessment of the needs of the injured worker with regard to the injury.
- Clarifying medical status, diagnosis, and appropriateness of the treatment plan.
- Projecting the estimated length of disability and recovery time.
- Addressing the issues of causality, pre-existing conditions, prior medical history and physical capabilities with the treating and/or consulting physician.
- Monitoring the injured worker's compliance with treatment.
- Attending medical appointments with the injured worker and discussing the treatment plan with the medical provider.
- Scheduling Independent Medical Examinations (IME) and second surgical opinions when necessary.
- Meeting with employer to review job duties of the pre-injury job and complete job analysis.
- Recommending temporary light duty job assignments and modifications when necessary.
- Referral to a vocational expert when the individual cannot return to work in his pre-injury position.
- Customized reports to meet the customer needs.
